WOMAN LEGISLATOR SPILLS THE BEANS

KILLS BIBLE READING BILL BY A PARLIAMENTARY RUSE

Friends of Act Vote to Kill
Amendment Then Learn
Measure is Dead for This Session—Futile Effort
Made to Retrieve Proposal.

Thru a clever parliamentary trick Representative R. P. Buchanan's bill for compulsory Bible reading in public schools was killed in the Ohio House of Representatives Tuesday.

A record vote on a proposal to reconsider the action in tabling the measure disclosed that it probably would have been passed by a good majority, despite determined opposition if proponents had not been caught napping. Opponents sent the measure to the table, where it will remain for this session, by moving suddenly to lay a pending amendment on the table.

Mrs. C. J. Ott, Mahoning county representative, an opponent of the Bible bill, immediately after Representative A. L. Walton, Wyandot county, offered an amendment to the proposal providing for a commission to work out a plan of Bible study for schools obtained the floor and moved that the amendment be tabled.

Bill Killed Automatically.
The veto was taken and the motion declared to have carried, tabling the bill automatically.

Backers of the idea, many of whom voted to table the amendment, were furious and for a time threatened reprisals. They charged unfairness and made plans for obstructing other legislation.

When they obtained a chance for a record vote to suspend the rules and take the measure from the table, they were reconciled to their fate.

The motion was made by Representative A. L. Walton, Wyandot, whose amendment, in the form of a substitute, was pending when Mrs. Ott made her motion. It was defeated with 70 votes in the affirmative and 42 in the negative. It failed by four votes of a two-third majority required to suspend the rule.

While the motion may be renewed at any time, the supposition is that the fight is over unless the Ku Klux Klan backing the bill, demands further action.

M. S. KOMMISAROV

Gen. M. S. Kommisarov, sometimes referred to as the terror of Russia, who was chief of the political police of Russia during the regime of the late Czar Nicholas, arrived in New York recently to write his memoirs and to prepare a series of special articles on recent intrigue in Russia. During his career as police chief Kommisarov was one of the most feared men in the empire.

Author Thru, 'Tis Said.

Representative Buchanan said he would make no effort to have the bill re-introduced in the senate.

Mrs. Ott explained she had entered into no conspiracy to defeat the bill by trickery and said the idea to make the motion came to her on the spur of the moment.

Vengeance was taken upon her during the afternoon by friends of the klan when a bill relating to muskrats in which she was interested was killed thru a similar procedure by tabling an amendment.

FRANCIS WILLARD MEMORIAL

Interesting Meeting at Home of Miss Minnie Eberle in Kingston.

The Salem Woman's Christian Temperance Union met Thursday afternoon, February 12, at the home of Miss Minnie Eberle, on East Pickaway street, Kingston. A good attendance of members and four visitors were present. One new member was added to the union.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Mary Harpster. After singing "America" and scripture reading prayer was offered by Mrs. Anna Rice. The program for the afternoon was a memorial for Francis Elizabeth Willard, founder of the W. C. T. U., and whose heavenly birthday comes in this month.

The president read a very fine paper on Frances E. Willard's life and the work she accomplished. Leaflets on her work were given by Miss Georgia Hall, Mrs. Fred Dumm, Mrs. Frank McAfee and Miss Margaret Veach. Miss Willard's great ambition was to serve. Her great ambition and noble aspirations were to unite the Christian womanhood of the world to fight for a larger and truer interpretation of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of men, to the end that we might secure not only for our own beloved nation but for all the world a sweeter childhood and a more consecrated fatherhood and a more holy and devoted motherhood. Her great epigram, "The golden rule of Christ will bring the golden age of man," is indeed epitomized in her golden words and noble deeds the outward expressions of her inner great and noble soul. Miss Flossie Harpster director of the Loyal Temperance Legion read a paper, "A Challenge to Young Women." Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president, was present and gave a valuable and instructive talk on the departmental work of the organization.

The meeting closed with the W. C. T. U. benediction. The home was beautifully decorated in keeping with the many holidays of the month. Elegant refreshments of chicken sandwiches, pickles, heart shaped cookies, cake decorated with flags, brick ice cream with the hatchet frozen in the center and coffee were served during the social hour.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Dumm on West Pickaway street, in Kingston.

Mrs. Harry Hosler visited her sister-in-law, Miss Verna Hosler, at Grant hospital Columbus today.

Offutt Store, of Which Lincoln Was the Manager

On Lincoln's birthday, and indeed for days before and after that anniversary, this old log building in New Salem, Ill., is an attraction for great numbers of visitors. It is the original Offutt store of which Abraham Lincoln was manager and where he served as postmaster, and it also was the scene of the famous Lincoln-Armstrong wrestling match. The store has been restored and appears almost exactly as it did in Lincoln's time.

LEAD IN EGG PRODUCTION.

Charles Schleich, of Deercreek township, takes the lead in poultry calendar egg records for January averaging 14.4 eggs per hen for the month.

E. H. Fetheroff, of Saltcreek township, was second with 13.4 eggs per hen.

The January Ohio State university standard is 10 eggs. We think that Messrs. Schleich and Fetheroff are improving on the original receipt.

Hays and Brinker's hens laid 11.3 each which is a very good average. Other records ran from 7.6 to 2.8 for the month.

SUBMITS POWER SURVEY

Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, Recommends State Control Electricity.

Harrisburg, Penn. Feb. 17. (UP.)—Report of the giant electrical power survey authorized two years ago was submitted to the legislature by Governor Pinchot today when he addressed a joint session urging adoption of the program to set the pace in national power development.

"Either we must control electric power or its masters and owners will control us," Governor Pinchot warned in pointing out the dangers of "super-power" as the giant elephant trampling man underfoot unless he learns to "ride his neck."

The scope of the recommendations made in the report of the giant power board embraces the entire field of electric power development and utilization.

A scheme is devised and legislation recommended to:

- 1.—Foster formation of mine mouth power corporations by guarantees of fair return and by condemnation of any available water or coal resources.
2. Control by fifty year lease and permit from a state board as well as regulation by the public service commission all electric companies generation on a giant power scale.
- 3.—Pool and distribute high voltage current by regulation of transmission companies as common carriers.
- 4.—Convert electric service into interstate commerce by compacts among states and by congressional legislation.

Miss Phelps Gives Annual Report—Made 10,186 Calls.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Organization Thanks All Who in Any Way Lent Assistance.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Circleville Benevolent association was held February 10, at the City Cottage. Reports from the various committees, secretary, treasurer and Miss Phelps were read and accepted. The out going officers are President, Mrs. D. V. Courtwright; vice president, Miss Anna Thompson; secretary, Miss Florence Dunton; treasurer, Mr. J. Wallace Crist. The new officers are President, Mrs. Courtwright; vice president, Mrs. Mary Krimmel; secretary, Mrs. Thomas Brown; treasurer, Mr. William Uhm.

Miss Phelps' Report.
It seems only a short time ago that I was writing a report for the annual meeting and here it is time for another. The work has been much the same as in years past—only more of it. We are doing more school work than ever before. It would be impossible to write all the interesting things that come day by day. It would take too much time and space so I will give a brief report.

In looking over the annual reports since 1913, it was interesting to notice the chief topics under discussion were "Housing Conditions and School Inspection." Some progress has been made in one respect—that of school inspection. A year ago each pupil was given two cards. These cards were to be taken to the family physician who was to examine the child, fill out the cards and return one to the parents and one to the teacher. While this was not a perfect success it was a start in the right direction. Every child in the first to eight grades was weighed and measured.

Those who were five pounds or more underweight were given one-half pint of milk in the middle of the forenoon each day. To those who couldn't pay the milk was furnished free. This by the way is one of the uses to which the Christmas Seal money is put. It is wonderful the result we get in every way. The superintendent, principals, teachers in the public schools and the Sisters at St. Joseph's are all interested and kind and helpful to us in this work. We thank them.

If you were to start out with me tomorrow and if we were to go north, south, east or west you might ask: "How about the housing conditions—are they improved?" The answer in most cases would be "they are not." I wonder why so much time and money is spent on how to raise better cattle, pigs and poultry and so little on babies? Are they placed higher in value than boys and girls who are to be men and women in a few years? One cannot expect much from these places called home. No man with any self respect or respect for his family would leave them there. I wish you all could have heard a sermon on "The Value of Boys and Girls" that I heard a short time ago. It was just splendid. Perhaps sometimes babies may have

Metal Embroidery Wins Favor of Paris Women

Embroidery in gold and silver thread is the feature of the newest French frocks, particularly when the material is of black or one of the duller shades. This frock is of black satin.

Artificial Flower and Its Decorative Value

Of course, the first importance of the artificial flower lies in its decorative value. Founded on this, it has become a definite fashion note. But before we consider this aspect, let us think about its usefulness. Take, for example, a woman with very broad shoulders. A medium-size flower, placed on her shoulder, between her neck and arm line, will tend to give a slightly narrower appearance to her shoulder line, largely to the one on which it is placed, it is true, but the fact remains it takes away from the entire shoulder breadth.

Another use for the artificial flower is to soften the too large neckline. By this is not meant that one should be placed right on the hip, making its bulge even more noticeable. But if a large flower is placed so that it will come within the outside neckline, and will add to it long foliage or a drooping piece of ostrich, a length of line is suggested that will detract from hip breadth.

Thus when you are trying on a tailored frock or evening gown, observe whether the addition of such an ornament will improve the dress.

Of course, when it comes to the purely decorative value of the artificial flower, much could be said. Considering first the white gardenia, it is well to remember that it will not be nearly so helpful to many women as would a flower with more color. An all-black costume is actually becoming to comparatively few types, so that only the woman with abundant natural coloring can afford to be without any contrast with her black. For the woman of medium or high complexion, the addition of a white flower to an all-black costume will be favorable, but for the paler type a bright red flower will prove much more effective.

Leather Coat Chic for School or College Girl

For some time leather has been used for rather clumsy sport or rain-coats which had no particular claim to beauty, but were strictly practical and useful. That it could be fashioned into coats that are as smart as they are practical is proved by several of the new models which have recently appeared. These have lost none of the attributes of serviceableness, but have added those of chic and beauty and it is not difficult to predict that these coats of smooth finished leather or of suede will be most successful.

Short-bloused coats of suede are wonderfully smart and are ideal for the school or college girl. A little felt hat either in the color of the jacket or matching the skirt is usually worn and all the accessories, such as sport hose, shoes and gloves, are in perfect harmony.

Even more interesting are long leather coats in a dull shade of red which have decorations of narrow leather cordings and are collared and faced with fur.

Also of red leather is a short box coat trimmed with wide bands of silver muskrat cut out in pointed scallops.

To Remove Stains

Iron rust may be removed from delicate fabrics by covering spot thickly with cream of tartar, then twisting cloth to keep cream of tartar over spot; put in a saucepan of cold water, and heat water gradually to boiling point. To remove old tea or coffee stains, wet spot with cold water, cover with glycerin, and let stand two or three hours. Wash with cold water and hard soap. Repeat if necessary.

Voluminous Collars

Fur collars on winter coats are so voluminous as to practically take the form of a fur stole. When open the collar falls to each shoulder in sweeping laps. When closed it wraps almost twice around the

Aboriginal Ohio Temple Pictured to Scientists

Washington, D. C.—The most important aboriginal temple in the United States was built by prehistoric mound builders in and around the present site of Portsmouth, Ohio. The ten miles of embankments still traceable there represent various heavenly bodies, including sun, moon, stars, and banks which accurately reproduce the form of the "seas" on the moon, used in an ancient sky worship. Such are the conclusions presented to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Stansbury Hagar, secretary of the council of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

The main avenue formed by parallel embankments 100 feet apart and 4 feet high and 20 feet wide begins in Kentucky and extends across the Ohio river and presents the form of a serpent. Mr. Hagar pointed out that objects assumed from other mounds showed the influence of Mexican and Maya culture in which the serpent was extensively used as a religious symbol.

The only serpent temple which can compare with the Portsmouth mounds, Mr. Hagar said, is that of Karnac, in Brittany, which is 11 miles long.

Making Improvement Sure.

We can all do good work, for all that is required is to follow directions laid down by other people who have done good work before us. It may be that we can improve on what other people have done, and after a while it may be that we can strike out a line for ourselves. Most of us will find that if we do the best we can, even in the most plodding way, we shall find ourselves improving and rising, step by step, in our chosen task.—New York Evening Telegraph.

HARTMAN THEATER.

Julia Sanderson opens an engagement of one week at the Hartman theater, Columbus, next Monday night, February 23, in a vehicle written by William Le Baron entitled "Moonlight," in which she played New York City for six months and long engagements in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. The producer, L. Lawrence Weber is sending Miss Sanderson on a tour that will take in all the large cities between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and which it is expected will require two years to complete.

"Moonlight" is laid on Long Island, on a millionaire's estate, who is given to making strange wagers. He bets that he can make any couple fall in love by providing proper settings of seclusions poetry, soft lights, moonlight and a wailing violin. The idea is good but it works out with the wrong persons wherein lies the comedy in the play. One New York manager who timed the laughs found one every thirty seconds.

Miss Sanderson is supported by a large and able cast. Chief of the supporting performers is Frank Crumit, well known for his ability to make croony tunes with a guitar or ukulele. Others are Louis Simon, Frank Woods, Miss Sascha Beaumont, Ward Fox, Glen Dale and Miss Helen O'Shea who is called the "Dresden China Doll" because she resembles nothing more than a dainty bit of bric-a-brac.

There never was a Weber show with out a fast stepping, good looking, good singing chorus and "Moonlight" is no exception to the long list of Weber successes in this respect. "The Tiffany Girls" as Mr. Weber has called his chorus are said to be gems of feminine pulchritude.

"Moonlight" is said by all reviewers to be a charming show. Julia Sanderson, of course, is the chief charmer, but there are at least six song bits which help exert that subtle influence known as "charm." These songs half of the number in the show are "Old Man in the Moon" "Say it Again," "On Such a Night," "Forever" and "Honeymoon Blues."

FORT RINGGOLD AN INTERESTING POST

Important Outpost in Line of Indian Defense.

San Antonio, Texas.—Nestling in the foothills of Starr county, lying snugly against the banks of the somber and treacherous Rio Grande, rubbing shoulders with the quaint and typically Mexican town, Rio Grande City, just midway between Brownsville and Laredo, is located one of the most dignified and stately of army posts—Fort Ringgold, Texas. Chaplain R. W. Rogers, who prepared the history of this post for the United States Army Recruiting News, says that while having enjoyed a varied but quiet career, it nevertheless is considered a very strategic border post. Fort Ringgold was established when the Rio Grande was navigable, boats bringing the first detachment of men to Davis Landing which later was called Ringgold Barracks. In those early days the nearest railroad was at Laredo something more than 100 miles away, while now she boasts a railroad at Sam Fordyce, only 20 miles away.

Camargo, Mex., six miles south of Fort Ringgold, was founded March 5, 1749, by Jose de Escandon. The first survey and map was made for the king of Spain in 1765. It shows a line running north 8,624 varas (33 1-3 inches) from the cross, the central point of operations in Camargo. This line then ran northeast including the Fort Ringgold reservation. With the withdrawal of Texas from Mexico and its admission to the United States, the original title changed over to the state. In the early 40's, H. Clay Davis, a restless young wanderer, drifted to that section of the country and purchased a large tract of land. He soon established a prosperous ranch and settled down to make his fortune.

Capt. J. H. La Motte, First United States Infantry, took a small detachment of soldiers up the Rio Grande to Davis Landing, arriving on October 26, 1848. Not until 1853 was the first lease made. A tract 400 yards square, surrounded by a brush fence, containing 33 acres was surveyed. The lease was signed by H. Clay Davis, owner of the land, and W. W. Chatman, representing the United States.

Bandits Cross Border.
Immediately following the annexation of Texas to the United States bandits began to cross from Mexico killing, looting and burning at will. In repulsing one of these invasions on the battlefields of Palo Alto, an extensive prairie nine miles north of Brownsville, Maj. David Ringgold was killed May 8, 1846. Honoring Major Ringgold, the camp at Davis Landing was called Ringgold Barracks in 1849, and more recently designated as Fort Ringgold.

In September, 1854, the second lease was made, and operated five years. During this period log huts were erected for the use of the troops. Early in 1859 the soldiers were ordered further down the river owing to the Cortina trouble. The old lease having expired during the absence of the troops, another lease was made upon their return. This one was to operate for ten years, granting the owner $600 per year. It further provided, the government had the privilege of buying the land for $23,000. Two years later the Civil war started and the federal troops were taken from the Ringgold barracks. Immediately after the war troops were again sent to that post, arriving in 1867. The property was held by lease until 1878, when it was purchased outright.

In 1906, a brigade post was established at San Antonio. Fort Ringgold with other border posts was dismantled and abandoned. The property was turned over to the Department of the Interior. It was laid off in a town-site and about to be sold when border disturbances again took soldiers to Fort Ringgold. From 1911 to the present soldiers and National Guardsmen have constantly been on watch there. However, no improvement was made until 1917, when the property was again turned back to the War department. In 1918, congress appropriated $250,000 for the improvement of the post and in the following years other appropriations have been sufficient to repair and improve the post until today it is one of the most attractive reservations on the border.

Where Lee Lived.

The most interesting building is the three-room frame cottage on the hill near the signal station. This building was used by Robert E. Lee, when he was in command there as a colonel just before the Civil war. The building is still in a perfect state of preservation.

Many prominent and notable army men have seen service at Fort Ringgold. Two or three years before the Civil war Col. Robert E. Lee and Second Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant were stationed there at the same time. It was a strange coincidence that two leaders of later opposing forces should have been in the same post at the same time. Other prominent officers who have seen service there are: Jefferson Davis, General McCullough, General Hood, Lieutenant Colonel Sedgwick, General Buell, General Bee, Admiral Semmes, and, more recently both Generals Pershing and Harbord who served there as lieutenants. Troops which have been stationed there since the rehabilitation are, besides the National Guard: Third cavalry, Thirteenth cavalry, Twenty eighth infantry; Second squadron, Tenth cavalry and at present the Second squadron of the Twelfth cavalry.

PRESIDENT UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Marion Leroy Burton Died
Wednesday Morning of Pleurisy.

Ann Arbor, Mich. Feb. 18.—(UP.) Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, president of the University of Michigan and the man who nominated President Coolidge at the Cleveland Republican convention, died at 3:20 a. m. today.

Immediate cause of death was ascribed to a pleurisy condition that developed yesterday. Doctors aspirated the chest at noon yesterday and removed a quart of fluid. At mid night last night his condition became worse and he rapidly grew weaker.

Dr. Burton suffered a relapse on February 12 when a non infectious infarct caused a light hemorrhage.

Since time of his first illness from influenza in November, 1924, Dr. Burton had been confined to his home and unable to participate in even passive management of university affairs.

Funeral arrangements are to be made later.

From Day to Day.

Don't imagine that the doctor can cure your ills when it depends on you to care for yourself. It is not fair to the doctor to ask him to do the whole thing with a few little pills. What you do from day to day has more to do with your health than any medicine can possibly have, and plenty of substantial food, sleep and air constitute a daily dose that should never be overlooked.

State Collegians are full of pep and you should hear them at the C. A. C. jitney dance Saturday night.

KEEPING WELL MICE TAUGHT TO ANSWER DINNER BELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

DO WE inherit what our fathers learned and will our children inherit what we learn? This question, which scientific men term the problem of the "inheritance of acquired characteristics," has long divided the scientific world into two hostile camps.

Whether man inherits acquired knowledge or not, may be an open question, but apparently white mice do. Prof. Ivan P. Pawlow, the well-known Russian physiologist, tells in a recent issue of Science, how he taught white mice to come to dinner when the dinner bell rang.

The first generation of mice required three hundred lessons before they learned the connection between dinner and the dinner bell. When they finally learned it, they trotted to the feeding-trough as soon as they heard the bell. Their children only needed one hundred lessons, while their grandchildren learned to come to dinner when the bell rang in one-third of the time their fathers required. The fourth generation did still better, while the fifth generation were apparently born with an inherited sense of the connection, since after the dinner bell had rung only five times, they were at the dinner table and all ready for their food. Professor Pawlow says that he expects future generations of these white mice to be born with a knowledge of the connection so that they will associate the ringing of the bell with their dinner the first time they hear it.

Will the same rule apply to human beings? We do not know. We can't experiment with men and women, boys and girls and babies as we can with white mice.

How many of us know anything about the personal habits or characteristics of our great, great grandfathers? The man over fifty who married at the average period, probably has grandchildren of from two to five years old. His grandfather, who is his grandchildren's great-great-grandfather, was probably born about a hundred years ago. Unfortunately, we haven't any records, either of the peculiarities of people born a century ago or even of the fact that they were born at all. We will know more about human animals when we keep careful records of our children as we do of our prize bulls, fast horses, bulldogs, chickens and Persian cats.

Coast University Adopts New System of Exams

Berkeley, Cal.—A new system of examinations has been adopted by Prof. Warner Brown of the psychology department of the University of California.

This department had used the essay form, requiring the student to write at length on several questions. Doctor Brown did not deem this a fair test and so he formed a combination of tests.

One of the new methods requires the pupil to supply one word to make a sentence complete. In another he must choose among several alternatives. A third consists in giving him a number of statements, and asking him to tell of each whether it is true or false.

According to Doctor Brown, this type of test gives the student more choice of questions, because more ground is covered in less time. He says it exposes knowledge of a subject rather than the mere ability to state things.

Britons Forsake Frivols for Hard Facts of Life

London.—London hostesses are complaining that young men and women are taking life too seriously.

Eligible bachelors who once could always be relied upon to contribute to week-end festivities now frequently refuse such invitations on the plea of business.

Girls whose minds formerly were concerned mainly with dancing and dresses now take an interest in serious things. Many debutantes are following politics with unprecedented enthusiasm; a large number of girls keep political diaries and have albums of photographs of members of parliament instead of the former collections of autographs and photographs of good-looking actors.

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP WINS AGAIN

Splendid Essay on "Why Dad Should be a Farm Bureau Member" by Miss Trimmer.

The following essay written by Miss Priscilla Trimmer of Washington township on "Why Dad Should be a Farm Bureau Member in Pickaway County," won the prize given by the Farm Bureau recently:

My dad should be a Farm Bureau member in Pickaway County for many good reasons.

The main reason is that since his home is in Pickaway county he should cooperate with the farmers of Pickaway county to make the best better for his home and community.

In cooperating with the farmer in his county thru the Farm Bureau he can accomplish something, while, if he attempted alone to do some of the things this cooperative organization has done with success, he might fail.

Furthermore Pickaway county ranks one of the first counties of the state of Ohio for accomplishments in Farm Bureau work. It and its affiliated organizations has done a million dollar's worth of business this year. This shows that the Farm Bureau is not an experiment but an established organization supported by the farmers.

Another advantage he gains by cooperating with the Farm Bureau is the use of the services of the Pickaway County Livestock company; Pickaway Grain company, Local Cream association and Federal Farm Loan association.

The Pickaway Livestock company has been a great success. The highest evidence of this success is that the business has been increasing every month. Improvements have been made in transportation and at the stock pens and more are expected to be made soon. Comparatively all of the farmers have been well pleased with the returns of their shipping thru organization.

The Pickaway Grain company has secured two elevators for the use of the farmers. In taking his grain to either one of these elevators he is more sure of getting a price due him than at other elevators.

The Local Cooperative Cream association has been giving over three hundred patrons service since the closing days of June. Its business has been increasing gradually. The trucking plan has been used at this station. Thus the trucks can go directly to the farmers door for the cream, saving the farmer the trouble of taking it to the station several times a week.

The Farm Loan association is for all farmers inclusive. When a farmer wants to borrow any money this association it at his service.

Besides this advantage of being able to have the service of these successful organizations which quite a few counties cannot boast of, the Farm Bureau of Pickaway county has several active men in its service who helps the farmers. These men are out seeing what the farmer wants and needs, giving him advice and aid in all troubling questions. They are the Service manager, Mr. Harry J. Briggs and our County Agent Mr. J. D. Bragg.

Mr. Briggs, the service manager, has a big job on his hands. He is manager of the Livestock company, and the Cream association. He gets new members and heads the purchasing work of the Farm Bureau. He builds up routes for the trucking of cream. These are the main things he does. When he has any spare time he is out in the country doing what he can for the farmers interest.

The main things Mr. Bragg, our county agent does is to look after the Boys' and Girls' clubs and farm women in their work of poultry and clothing. Also part of the dairying business. Quite a few other things are included on his list, making him a very busy man.

When Dad becomes a Farm Bureau member his family becomes interested. The boys and girls thru club work take more interest in farm work. It gives them something to work for. When their work is finished it is judged the highest winner receiving a trip to Columbus on Club week. At this Club week the boys and girls learn and see much. They come home with a new idea of farming and how they can help their Dad in his problems.

The mother also becomes interested.

The Farm Bureau gives her a chance to take part in the work of Clothing and Poultry that other farm women are doing. She has a chance to become a leader in Farm Bureau work or club work if she takes an active interest in the Farm Bureau work.

When Dad is a member of the Farm Bureau he can get, his fertilizer, coal twine, dairy feed, grass seed and such things much cheaper by putting in his order with the rest of the Farm Bureau members.

These are my reasons why Dad should be a member of the Farm Bureau in Pickaway county. If he is not a member he is not a true economical farmer. The Farm Bureau gives him a broader vision of agriculture letting him see beyond his own fence line. It makes him realize that all farmers must work together and with other people. It gives his boys and girls an opportunity to become leaders later in Farm Bureau work thru club work. It has elevated the educational field in agriculture and tends to place farming on the same respected level with other industries.

Magpie Superstitions.

The magpie has a lot of stories connected with his career. What I am going to tell you seems like nonsense, but it is a straight fact. The "mag" of magpie was originally Marguerite or Margaret, simmering down into a nickname, just as a lot of human Margarets are affectionately called "Mag" by their friends. Of the magpie it is said that to see one is a sign of bad luck, two good luck, three death, four a wedding.—Exchange.

STEVENSON'S

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

(United Press)

Gallipolis, O., Feb. 17.—Ira Sheets, a farmer, surrendered to the police here today and confessed that he murdered his cousin, Aaron Sheets, last Saturday.

The body of Aaron Sheets was found in front of Ira Sheets' home with a wound in the chest inflicted by a charge of buckshot.

"Aaron attacked my wife. I caught him and killed him," was Ira Sheets' only explanation of the crime.

Columbus, O. Feb. 17.—The Gordon bill prohibiting Sunday dancing in public places was reported out today by the house codes committee.

Columbus, O. Feb. 17.—Miss Makepeace's bill providing for the teaching of Ohio history and geography in the schools was sidetracked today by the house school committee.

Columbus, O. Feb. 18.—Charles M. Lewis, lieutenant governor, will represent Governor Donahey at the inauguration of President Coolidge in Washington, March 4. Lewis will be escorted by Adjutant General Frank Henderson and Col. E. P. Lawler, of the Ohio National Guards.

Columbus, Feb. 18.—Feeble minded patients in Ohio institutions should be segregated or sterilized to prevent them reproducing their kind. Dr. E. A. North, director of the Cincinnati psychiatric clinic, told the joint legislative finance committee last night.

Dr. North appeared during the committee's hearing on the bill of Mrs. Van Nye, Cincinnati representative, and Mrs. Waitt, Cleveland senator, proposing two new feeble minded institutions.

The psychiatrist said that unless better care is given the mentally deficient the state in a few years will be spending twice or three times as much on them as it is now spending.

The committee took no action on the proposed measure.

Columbus, Feb. 18.—Lively arguments marked the senate automotive committee's hearing on the gasoline tax bill last night.

The committee may hold another public hearing but it is doubtful that anything can change its belief that if the gas tax is passed it must be accompanied by reductions in the automobile license tag fee. The house approved the bill without reference to the license tag fee.

Hubert Fuller, Cleveland attorney for independent oil companies opposed the measure in the hearing last night declaring that it would meet with general disapproval. It would raise the price of gasoline more than the amount of the tax due to the machinery companies would have to set up to keep their books, Fuller said.

L. J. Taber, master of the national grange, declared the farmers are paying too much of the cost of Ohio highways and that the tax was necessary to relieve them of this burden and to build better roads.

Visiting motorists, Taber said, should be required to pay for the upkeep of the Ohio highways over which they drive.

George Fisher Jr., the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher of Jackson township, fell on the cement walk at the Jackson township centralized schools Tuesday, while roller skating and sustained a fracture of the left leg. The break is medically known as a green stick fracture of the shin bone. A bad place in the sidewalk threw Young Fischer violently to the ground. Dr. H. C. Allen is attending the injured boy.

Promised to Play Safe.

Our little boy, aged 5, wanted to go to a circus that was soon to exhibit in a neighboring town. In this town only a few weeks previous a case of smallpox had been reported. When his mother objected to his going on account of the epidemic he immediately wanted to know what smallpox was like. His mother told him those afflicted would have a high fever and an itching sensation and that when they scratched it left ugly scars on their faces and hands. He was thoughtful a moment, then said: "If you will let me go I will come home as soon as I commence to itch."—Exchange.

a chance to be born in as clean, warm and well ventilated houses as the dumb animals now are.

I have attended three welfare meetings and visited the Ohio Public Health association twice. Miss Sadie Brunner and I attended the district Christmas Seal committee meeting, which was very interesting and helpful.

In listening to the reports from other cities I find we all have much the same things with which to contend. Several cases have been removed to hospitals, assistance given to worthy families when necessary, milk given to private families as well as to school children. The clinic for crippled children held down at the Home and Hospital was helpful to all who attended. We have had very few sick babies. Literature and talks to mothers are responsible for that.

We have all sorts of experiences some are funny, others are pathetic or disgusting. One amusing thing occurred just the other day. I was called to visit an old lady. When I entered the house she asked me who had sent me. I told her some one had called on the phone but I didn't know who it was. "Well," she said, "Some one has been nosing in my business again. What are you going to do?" I said, "I am going to try to make you more comfortable" which I did and when I left she asked me to come again and meant it. One of the most pathetic is when a fourteen year old boy come to the cottage and after being questioned admits he has been smoking cigars for a year and can not stop. This boy is not the only one smoking—we find them in the schools, see them on the street and to think a boy of fourteen can't give up a habit such as that. Can't something be done to help them stop a habit that will harm them in more ways than one if not given up.

I wish to thank all who have given mattresses, blankets, clothing, jellies and fruit. It has all been appreciated.

Also I wish to thank you all who have been so faithful and helpful to me.

The following figures will give some idea of the work done. Maternity cases 52; surgical cases 169; babies under three years 22; medical cases 266; pre school children 18; new patients 396; old patients readmitted 56; total number patients 544; number patients discharged 509; number patients February 1, 1925, 35; deaths from all causes 14; patients referred to hospital 16; nursing and instructive calls 2,726; miscellaneous 1,005; school (weighing and measuring) 6,455; total 10,186 calls. Each time a child is weighed, that is counted as a call.

Report of Secretary.

The activities of the Circleville Benevolent association during the past year have been practically the same as those of the previous years. The children in the different schools of the city have been weighed each month and milk has been given to the undernourished ones daily. Mrs. Stewart conducts a sewing class for six little girls each Friday afternoon. Christmas baskets were given to fifty-two needy families. This was made possible by the donations from the various churches, fraternal organizations and business men of the community.

Receipts for the year were as follows: Services $277.39; seals (1923) $20.30; donations $241.60; card party $95; seals (1924) $534.96; drive $1000.03; Pumpkin show booth $451.10; Renick fund $175; Red Cross $42.91; making a total of $2,838.29.

The expenditures were $2,557.94. This includes Miss Phelps' salary of $1,380 assistant's salary $416; car upkeep $75.84; relief work $160.26; Pumpkin show expense $190.04; dues to Anti-Tuberculosis society $5; health literature $3.23; gas $38.25; expense seal sale $253.42; office expense $35.90.

The association wishes to express its thanks and appreciation to all those who have in any way contributed to the success of the organization.

Another One Settled.

Yes, Ettie, it is perfectly proper for a gentleman to remove his hat on entering a house. A great many husbands have become confused on this point, it appears, as they will oftentimes remove their shoes on entering their homes, especially if the hour be rather late. This, of course, is a conservation measure of questionable value.—Indianapolis Star.

HISTORICALLY AND ARCHAEOLOGICALLY

Important Is the Discovery of Two Ancient Cities of North Africa.

Rome, Feb. 16.—(U. P.)—Out of the desert sands that have covered it for untold centuries, Leptis Magna, the ancient imperial city of North Africa is gradually arising, virtually intact.

Returning from Tripoli, where he has been supervising the excavation of Leptis Magna and Sebrata, Professor Paribeni, superintendent of antiquities at Rome, was enthusiastic over progress made in unearthing the buried cities.

Already an enormously beautiful amphitheater with every seat just as it was when the last chariot race thundered to a finish there, has been uncovered, Paribeni announced.

A few hundred feet away a vast temple, dedicated to Jupiter is being excavated.

Paribeni said while Leptis Magna was the more famous, Sabrata was equally important historically and archaeologically. Because of the comparatively slight depth of sand, unearthing of the two ancient cities has been easy, the professor said.

For the purpose of examining monuments and other valuable objects that have been revealed a congress of archaeologists will be held at Tripoli in April.

The memorial to Lincoln designed by Saint Gaudens and erected in Chicago is one of the most remarkable character studies in stone ever designed. The rugged simplicity of the monument, combined with the faithful portraiture of the statue, seems to breathe the spirit of the Great Man.

Record in Fight on Bovine Tuberculosis

More Tests in October, 1924, Than Any One Month.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More cattle were tuberculin tested during the month of October, 1924, in the nation-wide campaign to eradicate bovine tuberculosis than were ever tested in any previous month, according to a summary of the work compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture. A total of 642,602 cattle were given the tuberculin test during that month by the force of veterinarians engaged by the government and those co-operating in stamping out this costly cattle plague.

This exceeds by more than sixteen thousand the previous record number of cattle tested in one month. In May, 1924, there were tested 626,257 cattle, which was the highest number until the recent month of October. The total number of cattle now under supervision for the eradication of tuberculosis is 9,198,975. That the work of tuberculosis eradication is popularly supported is shown by the fact that there is a waiting list of more than two and one-half million cattle whose owners desire to have them tested as soon as practicable.

Of the 642,602 cattle tested in October there were 24,440 which reacted to the test, indicating that they were tuberculous. Such animals are immediately disposed of in accordance with regulations for the prevention of their acting as spreaders of the infection of tuberculosis.

Cost of Fertilizer Can Be Reduced by Legumes

"Grow more legumes and let nature take care of your fertilizer needs. Let the air help pay your fertilizer bill."

This is the suggestion soil and crop specialists of the Georgia State College of Agriculture make to help keep the cost of fertilizer down. Nitrogen is the most expensive constituent in factory mixed fertilizer, they say, and economy necessitates the using of a part of the unlimited quantities of nitrogen found in the air over Georgia farms.

The clovers and vetches have been found to make available about sixty pounds of nitrogen per acre, and when the whole crop is turned under, the fertilizing value is equivalent to the addition of five or six loads of stable manure.

A good legume hay crop turned under will lead to profitable and permanent farming. It would require four tons of ordinary mixed fertilizer per acre, containing 2 per cent ammonia, to furnish an amount of nitrogen equal to a good crop of vetch or clover. If purchased in mixed form this nitrogen would cost from $20 to $25 per ton.

Prune the Fruit Trees

Young trees, fruit or shade trees, require attention every season. The pruning knife should be used quite liberally if the best results are desired. There is no doubt that the fruit trees which are headed low prove more satisfactory. They are easier to get at when pruning, spraying and finally when picking the fruit. Grape vines require the same attention, early in the spring.

Control of Apple Scald

Oiled wrappers have proved to be the most practical preventive of scald found so far. The first consideration is prompt cooling after harvest. Then pack your apples, using oiled wrappers for each apple. Such apples should come through storage in much better condition. Write to the United States Department of Agriculture for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1380 for a more complete discussion of the problem.

Farm Hints

Cows do not enjoy moldy silage, and it makes horses sick.

Farmers of the United States planted 370,000,000 acres of crops in 1924.

Semi-solid buttermilk is a valuable poultry feed, especially when there is no home supply of sour milk or buttermilk.

Does the snow sift in on the shop or bench and tools in your work or garage? Melted snow is water, and water rusts.

The horticulturalist of the Dominion of Canada has kept well for 26 years by eating 8 to 16 apples a day, he told members of the state horticultural society at a recent banquet.

It is not denied that the robins and some other birds eat the cherries and berries. They also eat the cabbage and other vegetable worms. In fact, they like the worms better than they do the fruit. Even the sparrows are valuable when the cabbage worm season is at its height.

There is little danger of the small grower overdoing the fertilizing of his soil. The richer the soil the better for the majority of vegetables and flowering plants. It is well at all times to save any kind of fertilizer or anything that can be developed into fertilizer and apply it where most needed.

Reality of the Supernatural

We hear people in these days denying the supernatural. It is a little as if the planets should proclaim that there is no such thing as space, or as if the rivers should declare that there is no such thing as matter. We cannot lay our hands on life anywhere without feeling the thrill of that something more which underlies all law and eludes all physical analysis.—Washington Gladden.

When to Retire

"A man should not retire until he is more than a hundred or is incapable mentally or physically of doing his job," says Dr. E. J. Skade-King, almost a hundred, who has refused to resign as medical officer of health of Ilfracombe, Devon. "I am hale and hearty and do my work every day," he told civic authorities. "Age is largely a mental state, and my mental state is fine."

Mythological

Cytherea is another name for Venus, so called from Cythera, a mountainous island of Laconia, noted for the worship of Aphrodite (Venus). The tale is that Venus and Mars, having formed an illicit affection for each other, were caught in a delicate net made by Vulcan, and exposed to the ridicule of the court of Olympus.

Tree "Blazes" Lasting

The forest service says that the blazes which are put in trees never grow out, provided that the blaze is put in properly. One of the members of the forest service cites an instance of a blaze that was made in 1861 and states that it is possible to stand 15 feet from this blaze and distinguish it clearly.

Famous Comet

Donati's comet was visible in September and October, 1858, and was the finest of the century. It is due to return after 200 years. The head was 250,000 miles across and the tail extended more than half-way from the zenith to the horizon.

The Blow That Came to Lin Loo

By ANTHONY REIMERT

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

WE ALL took a natural interest in Lin Loo, chop suey restaurant proprietor. In the first place, he was a member of the Presbyterian church, and in the second he was the only Chinaman in town.

This interest was naturally enhanced when there appeared on the scene suddenly a pretty little Chinese wife.

And it rose to boiling point when he brought to the Rev. Mr. Sturgis Jones a tiny baby to be christened.

It howled as lustily as any Caucasian infant when the water was poured on it. That assured Lin Loo's standing in the community. Thenceforward all Rockington took a pride in its two Christian, civilized Mongolian adults and its one Mongol United States citizen. The business of the chop suey restaurant went up by leaps and bounds. Someone, learning that Lin Loo's deposit at the bank was a heavy one, even proposed nominating him for village trustee. However, as Lin Loo was not a citizen, and couldn't become one, the proposal came to nothing.

Spring brought its annual crop of infantile disorders. Measles and mumps—nothing to white children, but death to Mongolians. The little baby sickened and died.

"It might have been malignant smallpox," said Doctor Harrington. "No one could have saved it."

Lin Loo bore up under the blow. "He's taking it like a white man and a Christian," said the Rev. Sturgis Jones admiringly.

"They'll get over it when the next one comes," said Mrs. Sturgis Jones, with one of those feminine glances that are so significant.

Three months later pretty little Mrs. Lin Loo was dead. She was buried with the new-born baby beside her. Lin Loo was left alone.

Not a change appeared upon his stolid, smiling Mongol face. "But he feels it," said Rev. Sturgis Jones. "Don't believe for a moment that he hasn't any feeling. These Chinese have a wonderful power of self-control."

Opinion was divided on that point. But outwardly this second blow had left Lin Loo unscathed. He still presided over the chop suey restaurant, his voice was still raised in the hymns on Sundays. Whatever the inward change, he had succeeded in concealing his feelings from the eyes of the world.

"He'll get another wife," suggested Mrs. Sturgis Jones.

But no other Chinese bride appeared, and Rockington gradually forgot the tragedy that had wiped out the family of its one Chinese inhabitant. However, the chop suey restaurant continued to prosper.

Then an astonishing thing occurred. Loo was not in his seat at church one Sunday. And the restaurant was closed.

The Rev. Sturgis Jones, going to Loo's house to inquire whether he was ill, was forced to gain entrance through the scullery window. He smelled a peculiar smell, and discovered Lin Loo lying on a couch, under the influence of opium!

Then and there he preached him a sermon on the iniquity of his backsliding, but Loo was too far gone to understand.

The restaurant continued closed. For a week all the village was agog to know what had happened to Lin Loo.

At the end of the week it was announced that the chop suey restaurant was to be taken over by a compatriot. Loo's house had been sold at a knock-down price to Aaron's local clothier.

And Loo was going back to China. Finally the Rev. Sturgis Jones, making another effort to probe to the bottom of the mystery, entered the house—by the same scullery window—and discovered Loo, dressed in rags, prostrate before what looked to him, he said, suspiciously like a miniature heathen temple.

Compassion stirred him to put a friendly hand on Lin Loo's shoulder. "Lin Loo," he said, "some dreadful trouble has come to you. You must have faith. Won't you tell me what it is?"

Lin Loo looked at him with his eyes full of tears.

"She have one stroke. She paralyzed," he whimpered. "Letter from China."

"Who, who, Loo?" asked the Rev. Sturgis Jones.

"My cousin's glandmother."

All at Sea

A girl at a public library inquired if "The Red Boat" was in.

"I don't think we have the book," she was told.

"Oh, excuse me," said the girl. "I made a mistake. The title is 'The Scarlet Launch.'"

After a search the library assistant reported that no book with that title was listed in the card catalogue.

"But I am sure you have the book," the girl insisted. Suddenly she opened her handbag and produced a slip of paper on which something was written. Then she blushed. "Oh, I beg your pardon," she said. "It's 'The Ruby Yacht,' by a man named Omar, I want."—Boston Transcript.

MANDATORY MINIMUM WAGE LAW

Columbus, O. Feb. 17 (UP.)—Minimum wage legislation in Ohio is not necessary, the minimum wage fact finding commission declared in its final report to the general assembly.

This conclusion follows two years of investigation by the commission which was named by the previous legislature to investigate the operation of similar laws in other states.

Te report was submitted to the house by Representative Samuel I. Lipp, of Cincinnati, secretary of the commission, and a copy was filed with the senate.

Summarized the commission's conclusions are as follows:

Mandatory minimum wage laws are unconstitutional.

Non-mandatory laws, similar to the one in Massachusetts, can not be properly enforced except by public opinion and therefore are ineffective.

Minimum wage laws in other states have failed to bring the results sought.

Such legislation would have a serious effect on Ohio's industries and employees in competition with those of other states if the minimum was above that paid by other states.

Women in Ohio industries are receiving wages equal to those paid women in states where minimum wage laws are in operation so there is no necessity for such a law in this state.

The commission's report is expected to end for the present at least all minimum wage law agitation in Ohio.
